

U.S. Military Explorers

Vision

Mission

Train, develop and inspire tomorrow's Warriors for our Nation's Armed Forces.

The Vision for our U. S. Military Explorers Career Training Programs is based upon years of military experience, training, and confidence facing their abilities as a youth progresses on to a young adult looking at a military career. Helping them build up their experience weaving confidence with character, Military Explorer officers and enlisted personnel are the cutting edge of American Youth today. They are our nations' warriors of tomorrow. Here are the pillars of our U.S. Military Explorer Vision.

Professional Military Education (PME) As a dedicated military career training program, education of the youth along with Adult Advisors and Mentors to dedicated to delivering a quality product so when joining the military or joining society, the Explorer Cadet will be comfortable on assuming roles that place them among the leaders in their community. Education is the bedrock to a productive member of the team regardless of assignment or job. Character development is key in PME as a cadet moves through various promotions, assignments, and leadership roles.

National Pride with Patriotic Service The United States military is the forbearer in defense of our nation's freedom placed on a global stage. As such, each member of the U.S. Military Explorers team must become a sentinel in providing such dedicated service and pride to the Explorers and their nation. Wearing our national emblem on your uniform must also come with a sacrifice that each advisor and cadet must make as a Military Explorer.

Survival, Evasion Resistance and Escape (SERE) Our military expects our youth to be ready to assume the worst as defenders of America. Every military member is required to be able to survive the future battlefield with certain tenants of basic survival skills. Whether serving in Infantry, Aviation, Armor Maintenance, or other branch career fields, the American Fighting Code built upon your survival skills are paramount to your ability to retain the fight for America and your personal survival.

Warrior Ethos The military career path is one that differs from other civilian paths in that you must look at our enemies across a wide spectrum. From understanding your role in our military, you must become educated and trained to see what is happening globally thru the U.S. National Security Strategy. Becoming an instrument of that requires education, intelligence briefings, know the enemy, and build your own Warrior Ethos combining mind strength, personal grit, and ability to handle the tough road. Can you measure up?

Physical Fitness As the military needs physically fit individuals to perform military missions across the globe in expeditionary roles, you must consider healthy choices as you move through the ranks of the program. Certain benchmarks are necessary in some career fields that mirror our armed forces with their demanding fitness core such as special operations. Become educated and perform up to military physical fitness duty expectations to qualify to serve.

Moral Leadership Our country was founded on moral principles which have guided us through many years as we continue to develop as a nation. Youth today need to develop their own set of principles which help them become better leaders and followers as they prepare for their future military career. Helping them set this path for future guidance helps them mature as an adult as well. Having a good moral compass helps them develop good character traits as a productive member of society.
